

All The King's Horses

The Monkees

It's an age old score that's got to be settled
It's an age old debt that's got to be paid
When the King breaks through in all of His glory
To claim His throne and the world that He made
The nations wait with their armies gathered
With Jerusalem firmly under their thumbs
There will be no peace in Armegeddon Valley
Till the trumpet sounds and the Cavalry comes
When He arrives He will conquer them all
Take back the ground given after the fall
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna ride down from Heaven from where they've been
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna put this world back together again
Gonna put this world back together
On a great white horse, the King will come riding
He's the One they call Faithful and True
With His eyes of fire and blood dipped clothing
He had a name, nobody else knew
And by his side, rode the armies of Heaven
Dressed in linen clean and white as the snow
Riding down to earth with a vengeance so holy
For a one-day battle that will trample their foe
And when the dust and the smoke disappears
The King will reign for a thousand years
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna ride down from Heaven from where they've been
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna put this world back together again
Gonna put this world back together
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna put this world back together again
Gonna put this world back together again
When the lion lays down with the Lamb
There'll be peace in the land of Abraham
They will beat their swords into plows
When every tongue declares and every knee bows
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna ride down from Heaven from where they've been

All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna put this world back together again
Gonna put this world back together again
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna ride down from Heaven from where they've been
All the King's horses and all the King's men
Gonna put this world back together again
Gonna put this world back together again
All the King's horses and all the King's men
