The Story

coldrain

there's a voice inside that haunts me it wants the light I'm ashamed of this it's on me to make it right sew the seams because this is not the end no I will not give in this time not afraid of pain I won't be tonightturning the page, finding the way, learn from the fireI've been burned and I've been bruised but I face the demons with nothing to lose never let them hold me down to ground I'm making it through because I write the story in the sands of hate I buried myself alive just to find my fate was to carry the weight of my pride
sew the seams because this is not the end
no I will not give in this time paint me black but I will never fade no I won't fade into the nightI've been burned and I've been bruised
but I face the demons with nothing to lose
never let them hold me down to ground
I'm making it through because I write the story I've been blind and I've been broke but I find the answers the way that I know I'll never let them hold me down to ground I'm holding my own because I write the story
sew the seams because this is not the end
no I will not give in this time
paint me black but I will never fade
but I face the demons with nothing to lose
never let them hold me down to ground
I'm making it through because I write the story
I'll never let them hold me down to ground
I'm holding my own because I write the story
