

Starting All Over

Rebecca Coupe Franks

To feel a new touch, to smell a new scent

To learn a new love, the kiss of new lips

To feel a new trust, you know that's hard to find with people nowadays
I'd say that I'm so glad to find a new valentineTo start all this, all over

Without no vision or way of how it's supposed to be

See back then I was so young but now I'm much older

So I won't make the mistakes bein' I just couldn't see

I'm thinkin' that we need a harmony

So this here is the perfect harmonyTo see a new face, to hold a new hand

To live a new life, to be a new man

To win a new heart, you know that cupid's arrow's not right all the time

But your smile is like the sun that rise, so girl I won't mindTo start all this, all over

Without no vision or way of how love's supposed to be

See back then I was so young but now I'm much older

And I won't make the mistakes bein' I just couldn't see

I'm thinkin' that we need a harmony

It seems like it's the perfect harmonyI'll gently take your hand and try this love thing once again

Gotta take our time and share each moment, day and night

Or else it just slips away, slips away, oh slips away, slips awaySo are you willing to start all this all over?

With several visions and ways of how love's supposed to be

See back then I was so young but now I'm much older

And just won't make the mistakes bein' I just couldn't see

For this here I may need a harmony

You help me make the perfect harmonyTo feel a new touch, to smell a new scent

To learn a new love, the kiss of new lips

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlrics.com/>