Hang Out In Your Heart

Chely Wright

Taste me in your morning coffee
Feel me in the air
When the sunlight warms your skin
Baby, think of me
See me standing there beside you
When you know that your alone
And hear our conversations when you breathe
And baby,
Tell me where you are
If I can't make it
Let me hangout in your heart
I know you don't really need me,
But still you opened up
And I guess that's why this all feels so damn good

You know I don't need you either
But we want the want enough
And if we could deny it
We probably would
And baby,
Tell me where you are
If I can't make it
Let me hangout in your heart
So, I will let the echoes of your laughter fill my mind and I won't try to fight the drug you are
And maybe you will welcome for to meet from time to time
And you just let me hang out in your heart
Won't you let me hangout in your heart
