

In the Cool

Heart

I'm not a hero, not a saint
I'm just a fever trying to cool it through the bedlam days
I'm not leading or misled
I'm just tumbling through the sun heels over head But in the cool there's a place I'd lay away the day
And forsake all the hours unkind
When the moon melts the sun
Take my dreams and let 'em run
And roll all this heartache down to none Road I travel, high and low
If that's the way I go
And I've been fighting, and I am sore
I'm just an accidental soldier in a private war But in the cool there's a place
I'd lay away the day
And forsake all the hours unkind
When the moon melts the sun
Take my dreams and let 'em run
And roll all this trouble down to none Yeah, when the moon melts the sun
Take my dreams and let me run
And roll all this trouble down to none
Yeah, yeah, yeah
