

John

Benesse

Yeah when I go over yonder, I will see my mother
My sister and my father, but my brother is going to hell
    Yeah they hung him from the gallows
        As the sun turned red from yellow
        And the crowd they heard him halting
            And they sighed with much relief
        The preacher asked him for any last words
            My brother spit on to his clean shirt
                And he smiled without redemption
                And said this is one soul God don't need
                Oh yes I loved him but I won't miss him
                    As he's burning and he's twisting

    For his heartless dedication
        To the devil and it's creed
        Oh as a child we called him rotten
            Till he was lonely and forgotten
        And he revenged our constant jeering
            Oh with his every word and deed
                Oh yeah and for my contribution
                Oh and the souls lack of retribution
        I would ask the Lord's forgiveness on my very bended knee
            Oh it's the tale of Johnny Rotten
                Yeah who was lonely and forgotten
                And it's the tale of my only brother
                    And it's the tale of one bad seed
