

Gorgeous/Grotesque

Company of Thieves

There's nothing more gorgeous or grotesque than the sight of the garbage dumped on the sides of the railroad tracks

In the morning, on my way to work, I see them- little lumps- just glittering in the sunshine

What a messy way to say thank you

What a messy way to say anything

Oh, we need a closeness There's nothing more helpless or hopeless than the birds of the city streets, with the dirt on their heavy wings

In the evening, on my way to sleep, I hear them- screaming out into a bitter melody

What a messy way to say thank you

What a messy way to say anything

Oh, we need a closeness 'Cause when I wake

I am so far from reach

I am so far from Ah, we need a closeness, a harmless closeness

Oh we need a closeness, a harmless closeness!
