Sense Field

Say the words like an honest man would
Be the one in your neighborhood
All my life, I've understood
That you could, if you want toMy life, your time doesn't mean a thing
All by myself, in another place, in another time
All by myself, with the wheels of fate
With the wheels of timeAll by myself, and I watch them tower over me
They turn so slow, they never stop for anyone
And something about the fact makes me smile
As I sit and watch them, they turnIt suddenly occurs to me, I'm not aware of anything at all
And I'd have to say, "I think that's beautiful"
