Already Dead

Kittie

You won't find me here
The place that you expected me to be
In my bed on the second floor
I'm outside your house, I'm closing in on you
And all the times you smiled
You said hello and thought I was okay
I was planning your final struggle
When you wake up I'll be there
When you see me you'll be on your back again
When you, when you, when you, when you
Know you're already dead, you'll love me too
You will find me here
The place you least expected me to be
Breaking through your basement window
I'm outside your room, I can hear you breathe
And all the times you laughed
You shook my hand and thought I was your friend
I was planning your tragic ending
When you wake up I'll be there
When you see me you'll be on your back again
When you, when you, when you, when you
Know you're already dead, you'll love me too
You'll look down on me with eyes of endless tragedy
Try and stop the pain but there's never closure
Find your solace in what you could have been
When they look for me
The evidence is buried deep
Try to guide the way into the darkness
When you wake up I'll be there
When you see me you'll be on your back again
When you, when you, when you, when you
Know you're already dead, you'll love me too
Looking down on me through eyes that never stop crying
Looking down on me, will you ever look away?
