

All He Ever Saw Was You

Kate Wolf

Now the flame is out but the light burns on
No one ever said he was bigger than his song.
So few ever knew the heart inside the man but he gave himself away as only poets can.
He took the stories of his people Gave them back in rhyme
But for the pleasures of the heart there was never enough time He said one day heâ€™d quit then he would come home.
But there was always one more stage always one more road.

The candleâ€™s burning at both ends
Burning in the middle
Thereâ€™s no time to stop between the guitar and the fiddle
A crazy tune, a crazy time
You know the words were true
Smiles lift their eyes
But all he ever saw was you.

(Instrumental pause)

The road finally claimed him like a sailor lost at sea Setting sail on the horizon would not let him be.
Following a star drew him like a flame though he loved you so well he was not the same.
Candles burning at both ends
Burning in the middle
Thereâ€™s no time to stop between the guitar and the fiddle

A crazy tune, a crazy time
You know the words were true
Smiles lift their eyes

But all he ever saw was you.

Lyrics submitted by Valerie Grimes.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>