Glimmer

Aled Jones

I know that I was lost
And I know that it was too too hard
And although it isn't much
I give you all I have
There's a mirror in the old place
A place where we would stand
And wonder at our sweet sweet selves
Smiling hand in hand, this wasn't what we planned
Thought the night has fallen
I close my eyes and imagine
A tiny glimmer flickering on the horizon
It takes time to get it right
Takes no time to get it wrong
I can't believe I didn't see
The ground was caving in, oh, can we just start again?
Thought the night has fallen

I close my eyes and imagine
A tiny glimmer flickering on the horizon
Everyday, everyday, living my life like it's over
Like it's over and deep underground
Little look, little smile, flick the switch and it's over
Like it's lost and can never be found
But maybe there's a tiny glow
That won't die and won't leave us alone
Star shining, the sun is rising, ooh, ooh
There's a tiny glimmer flickering on the horizon
Can you see it? Can you see it there?
Can you see it? Can you see it there's
A tiny glimmer flickering on the horizon
It takes time to get it right
