Little

Something Corporate

Climbin' out of the sky, a man who could a fly
And a painting anyone could play
It's a comic book crush that taught you to trust
Staring out from the stands at a rock n roll band
And a hero no one else could save
It was never much but it's all that you gaveAnd I wonder, if you wonder
Or did your stars finally explode?
Did the thunder pull you underneath the haze?
I'm amazed than I let goThe little minds let little pain
Burn big old dreams with little flames
And you don't think I understand
The little holes in parachutes
Won't leave you fallin' if they do
It's because you want to landClimbing out of his chair to fix the T.V. glare is a man
But no one knows he's there
It's a Dramamine dream that kept them alive but lost
She's got her plastic friends and a brand new Benz and she laughs
Hell, sometimes life ain't fair
It's a comic book crush that got them nowhereAnd I wonder if you wonder
Or did your stars finally explode?
Did the thunder pull you underneath the haze?
I'm amazed, than I let goThe little minds let little pain
Burn big old dreams with little flames
And you don't think I understand
The little holes in parachutes
Won't leave you fallin' if they do
It's because you want to landThese elevator doors are closin'
Again you leave before I planned
I taste you walking down the hall
You left your perfume on the nightstandThe little minds let little pain
Burn big old dreams with little flames
And you don't think I understand
The little holes in parachutes
Won't leave you fallin' if they do
It's because you want to land
