We're Not Alone

Broken Iris

At sunrise, open your eyes take a good look outside and wonder,
"Is this right?" Because deep down inside there's something that's left
To discoverIs your grand design hand woven nor divine?
As right as the rain smells when it hits the ground
As safe as an infant feels in its mother's arms
Sleeping peacefully sound
Singing...We're not alone softly she whispers
As out of control as this world seems to be
We're not aloneWhen day turns to dusk
And you close your eyes and finally realize as you ponder
A battling storm in the skyIs your grand design hand woven nor divine?
As right as the rain smells when it hits the ground
As safe as an infant feels in its mother's arms
Sleeping peacefully soundWe're not alone softly she whispers
As out of control as this world seems to be
We're not aloneIt's impossible to blink away
From this astonishing absolute beauty
And I smile just as you saySet all your fears aside
Reveal what has grown through time
The Overcast falls behind
Then you'll findWe're not alone softly she whispers
As out of control as this world seems to be
We're not alone
