One Truth

Globus

You don't believe in love and war.
You've found the truth you can't ignore.
And all the hopes for your conforming have all crumbled now.

You take the route.
You've been forewarned.
You've been cast out and felt the scorn.
And all the lies just mount like broken glass upon the ground.

How many words have been spoken about a dream that still survives,
And to keep the hope alive?
How many promises broken,
By the ones that still delight in the spreading of the lie?

You don't believe in the Holy Grail.
You've seen those dreams get so derailed.
And all those words, like thunder crashing through a broken sky.

How many words have been spoken about a dream that still survives,
And to keep the hope alive?
How many lives have been broken,
By the ones that still delight in the spreading of the lie?

One journey ends, one life begins.
One truth will find you free again.
One journey ends, one life begins.
On truth will be revealed again.

You don't believe in love and war.
You've seen those fears played out before.
And every heart in battle lies in pieces on the ground.

We send our boys to distant shores.
We cannot tame them anymore.
The day will come when we have no more lives to squander.

How many souls have been taken to the mountain top and down,
To the valley once again?
How many lives are forsaken by the demons at the gate,

Teach the child within to hate.

One journey ends, one life begins.
In truth you'll find you're free again.
One journey ends, one life begins.
One truth will make you heal again.
One morning breaks, one night will end.
One truth is all you can defend.
One morning breaks, one night will end.
Break From This World and live again.
One journey ends, one life begins.
One Truth will rise to heal again.
One journey ends, one life begins.
One Truth will make you free again.

You don't believe in love and war.
You found the truth you can't ignore.

Lyrics submitted by [({ ELLE)}].

Lyrics provided by
https://damnlyrics.com/