

Disproportioned Head

The Vandals

If my body was twice the size it was then I might look alright but I don't because,
I've got a disproportioned head.
And the people they point and laugh at me and they tell me it's huge 'cause honestly -
I've got a disproportioned head.
Don't try and be nice and say, "It's really not that big"
'cause I am well aware that you are lying - about my head.
It blocks out the sun like a parasol.
And I'm walking around like a Dodger doll 'cause I've got a disproportioned head.
And I can't make it better with surgery.
So I'm stuck with a skull and the world can see,
I've got a disproportioned head.
Don't try and be nice to me because you think I'm near.
I'm across the street and I can't hear.
Don't offer advice to me, of hats- it's all been tried.
They don't really make them in my size...Head.
And I can only fit in convertible cars.
And my Mom has a 3-foot cesarean scar,
'cause of my disproportioned head
And I'd go ahead and end it now
If I could find a noose that would fit around my huge, disproportioned head.
I've got a disproportioned head [x3]

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>