

Rewind

Ollie Kirk

Lost on your bedside table, my dear
Its you've gone to pour yourself another
This old world is slowly taking your mind
Memories fading, taking back time

And I'll love you enough for the both of us
If you should forget that you do
So the part of your mind that's connected with mine
You'll never quite lose

You can forget where you left your phone and your keys
But I won't let you forget about me
I'll work to make you fall in love with me everyday
And if all of my efforts can help you to know
I have been there by your side
For all of your life
Then I'll just rewind

Beaten your knees with the "which one is she?"
Beaten with afternoon's "when's morning tea?"
Hell even sometimes when I look in your eyes
I can tell you're not sure who you woke up beside

But I'll love you enough for the both of us
If you should forget that your eyes
Are the way that my soul is connected with yours
'Cause you're my life

You can forget where you left your phone and your keys
But I won't let you forget about me
I'll work to make you fall in love with me everyday
And if all of my efforts can help you to know
I have been there by your side
For all of your life
Then I'll just rewind

I'll love you enough for the both of us
If you should forget that you do
So the part of your mind that's connected with mine

You'll never quite lose

You can forget where you left your phone and your keys

But I won't let you forget about me

I'll work to make you fall in love with me everyday

And if all of my efforts can help you to know

I have been there by your side

All of your life

Then I'll just rewind x3
