

Lucrecia

Levon Helm

Saturday night a'cruisin the streets in the city.

Hey mister can you tell me where to go.

He said I know a place, now if you want the real nitty gritty, well Lucrecia is the girl that you oughta know.

So I jumped in the cab, I followed this stranger's direction, We pulled up to the Paradise Hotel.

I walked up the steps so eager in need of affection.

I reached out and stuck my finger on the bell.

And then a voice outta nowhere said kindly state your business, please.

Lucrecia, angel in the night, spread your wings and take me on a magic flight.

Lucrecia, a quarter for the dance.

Well if you spend your money, she'll supply the sweet romance.

On up in her room, my fantasy went into motion, she thrilled me like I never been before.

I was weak in the knees, after the ragin' commotion.

I stood up and slowly staggered to the door.

She said you came in like a schoolboy but you leavin here a man.

Lucrecia, angel in the night, spread your wings and take me on a magic flight.

Lucrecia, a quarter for the dance.

Well if you spend your money, then she'll supply the sweet romance. (repeat)

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>