Dear Bobbie

Yellowcard

{Dear Bobbie, do you remember
When you were young and very pretty? I do
I remember pleated skirts, black and white saddle shoes
Do you remember dancing that night? I do
I still think of you when we dance
Although we cant jitterbug as we did then}Do you remember when How long has it been?
Nineteen forty five
You opened my blue eyes
To see a whole new lifeDo you remember when
I told you this that night
That if you're by my side
When everyday begins
I'll fall for you again?
I made a promise when
I told you this that nightThat I'll be fine
Cause when I die then I die loving you
It's alright, I'll be fine
When I die then I die loving you
Loving you, loving you{Do you remember the times
We would give up on each other and get back together
Then we finally was married in nineteen forty nine
We drove the yellow convertible all night long
Do you remember? I do}Life has led us here
Together all these years
This house that we have made
Holds twenty-thousand days
And memories we've saved
Since life has lead us hereAnd I'll be fine
Cause when I die then I die loving you
It's alright, I'll be fine
Cause when I die then I die loving you
Loving you, loving youI'm coming home to you
Stepping off my shoes
Resting in my chair
See you standing there
The silver in your hair
I'm coming home to youWhen I lay tonight
When I close my eyes

I know the sun will rise
Here or the next life
As long as youre still mineThen it's alright, I'll be fine
Cause when I die then I die loving you
It's alright, I'll be fine
Cause when I die then I die loving you
Loving you, loving you{You have gray hair now but you're a, a beautiful women
And the years have been good to both of us
We walk slow now but we still have each other
The glue of love is still bonding us together
That is what I remember, do you remember?}
