

Lost Weight, Perfect Skin

Lower

Stuck
right here Aging so fast
going nowhere Trapped at the depths that I dug Regret the chances
I took Nothing changes
only bliss
Which slowly ceases
to exist
But then again Lost weight, perfect skin
Will bring the torment to an end
Put the smile back on my lips
It's
a crying shame
to feel
the same as in the last decade
It was tough then
But now it's unbearable
I've slaved
over ways
to iron out
The worry lines
stuck to my face
No method
has proven effective No alternatives adequate So nothing changes
only bliss
Which slowly ceases
to exist

Resembling someone who belongs
in a grave
Just as lively Just as pale I was young and attractive
On
the brink of success
But somehow
I threw it away But then again Lost weight,
perfect skin
Will bring
an end
Put the smile back
on my lips
It's
To feel
It was tough then
Now it's unbearable
