

You And Me And The Moon

The Magnetic Fields

Brian Wilson 1960 and vine
Summer kisses in a Pendleton shirt
Songs and gentle words
Granted wishes
When I look in your eyes I go soft inside
And the sound of your voice sends shivers up my spine
And at the slightest touch we're in love
You and me and the moon
In a cool gay bar where the people are entertaining
When the sun pops in we'll still be talking and champaging

Underneath the strobe light, we'll dance all night
I'm a little bit shy, you're easy on the eye
And at the slightest touch we're in love
You and me and the moon
When you look in my eyes I go soft inside
And the sound of your voice sends shivers up my spine
And at the slightest touch we're in love
You and me and the moon
