

Lost Along the Way

moe.

What if they came, lost along the way?
What if they stayed, just, one more day?
It's a heavy way, there's trucks along the grade
Alright ok, maybe it'll all just go away
So, what if they came and all the people had just gone away?
It looked like a day somewhere in New Mexico, before the break of day
There wasn't a sound except for the rush of blood, inside your head
No one around
Out the door, All the people went away
Nothing more, Nothing less to say
What if the skies just opened up one night
And the green green lights and the stars just all stepped aside
Then she opens her eyes, maybe then she cried
Maybe on that night no one stopped to wonder why
So, what if they came and all the people had just gone away?
It looked like a day somewhere in Mexico, before the break of day
There wasn't a sound except for the rush of blood, inside your head
No one around
Out the door, All the people went away
Nothing more, Nothing less to say
(JAM)
So, what if they came and all the people had just gone away?
It looked like a day somewhere in Mexico, before the break of day
There wasn't a sound except for the rush of blood, inside your head
No one around
No one around
No one around
So, what if they came and all the people had just gone away?
It looked like a day somewhere in New Mexico, before the break of day
There wasn't a sound except for the rush of blood, inside your head
No one around
Out the door, All the people went away
Nothing more, Nothing less to say
