Blessing in Disguise

Excessum

Well, I guess you know, you took me by surprise
When you told me that you'd broken all the rules
And the future felt as empty as your eyes
When I realized how far I was from you
But they tell me that the truth'll set you free
From the sad confusion of your lies
And it led me to a side of you that I'd refused to see
So I guess it's been a blessing in disguise
So there's nothing left to keep us holding on, now
To the mystery we used to be before
What we ever shared together there is gone, now
And what might have been don't matter anymore
But they tell me that the truth'll set you free
From the sweet illusion of your lies
And it led me to a side of you that I'd refused to see
So I guess it's been a blessing in disguise
