

No Good In Goodbye (Acoustic)

Jewel

Once upon a time used to feel so fine
I really made to shine, we'd laugh like we were drunk on wine
But not anymore, no, not anymore
No, not anymore, no, not anymore Used to feel so good, used to laugh like we should
We did what we could, come on, baby, I'm sorry
Would you open the door? Come on, open the door
Come on, open the door, come on, open the door Baby, don't say the stars are falling from your eyes
Baby, just say, say you need me one more time
For you and I, there is no good in goodbye You know I used to love to leave, always had something up my sleeve
I guess I mistook being alone for being free
But never again, no, never again
No, never again, no, never again Baby, don't say the stars are falling from your eyes
Baby, just say, say you need me one more time
For you and I, there is no good in goodbye Yes, I too was just like you, finding comfort in a stranger's face
In some darkened place where no one knew my name
And I was slow to see that everything had changed
And I was sad to see that I'd never be the same But without you by my side I'd go insane
You make the world make sense
Baby, you make the world make sense Baby, don't say the stars are falling from your eyes
Baby, just say, say you need me one more time
For you and I, there is no good in goodbye
For you and I, there is no good in goodbye
There'll be no goodbye
