

The Playful Heart

Robin Trower

It's a darkened train
It's a lifeless eye
No reason now to explain
The long goodbyeStepped into the spotlight
Believed in every part
The world could not fulfill
The playful heartIt's an empty room
A forbidden place
The attitude to assume
Without her faceNot lying down or falling
The breathing will not start
The world could not fulfill
The playful heart
Taught myself to hold on
To words of human warmth
Emotions you have sold on
Without thoughtPraying to be bolder
You took me further down
Every touch bewildered
More unknownIt's the hidden door
In the garden wall
The hidden door we all know
Is not there at allThe lock that has no key
Keeps the two apart
The world could not fulfill
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
The playful heart
