

Live Again

Future Leaders of the World

Open my eyes for the very first time I'm breathing stillborn hearts full of lies you say everything is for a reason I say you're right and as we come together our lives and souls as one we hope this will last forever
I know I won't let go
I'll never be the same there's no one left to blame I can see myself through the window of your pain what have I become this life has made me numb come and break my heart so I can live again
our lips touch for the very first time I drink you in like heavenly wine you say everything has its season I say you're right and as we come together our lives and souls as one we hope this will last forever
I know I won't let go
I'll never be the same
there's no one left to blame I can see myself through the window of your pain what have I become
this life has made me numb
come and break my heart so I can live again
what have I become
this life has made me numb
come and break my heart so I can live again
I'll never be the same
there's no one left to blame I can see myself through the window of your pain what have I become
this life has made me numb
come and break my heart
so I can live again

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>