

Friend or Faux

Brandtson

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

The secret got out and the damage is done

Nothing comes easy, under the sun, yeah

Well it's no secret, you know that it's no secret

Another reason to lay down and play dumb, all right There's something keeping you from letting it go, uh-huh

Think you got nothing from your glass half-full, oh-oh

It's always something, you know it's always something

You know you're so cynical Do you want to feel this way?

Are you going to bend and break?

Underneath the weight of this world

Don't you know, don't you know So many problems, so little time

And you're in bed with the devil, oh yeah

You're really something, you know you're really something,

And you have the money to sit through the lie, oh oh Well nothing changes and the waiting was full, oh no

You want it handed to you while you sit still, oh oh

It's always something, you know it's always something

You know you're so cynical Do you want to feel this way?

Are you going to bend and break?

Underneath the weight of this world

Don't you know, don't you know Do you want to feel this way?

Are you going to bend and break?

Underneath the weight of this world

Don't you know, don't you know

You're so cynical It's always something, you know it's always something

It's always something, you know it's always something

You know something, well you just got to know

Who do you think you are? Do you want to feel this way?

Are you going to bend and break?

Underneath the weight of this world

Don't you know, don't you know Do you want to feel this way?

Are you going to bend and break?

Underneath the weight of this world

Don't you know, don't you know

You're so cynical

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>