Ebb and Flow

Joe Robinson

Taste the honey just to try
Pick the apple take a bite
We only want to have some fun
But we got to get the job doneMoney, money rub our hands
Big machine we're in a trance
Every day I get out of bed
There's ebb and flow, but mainly ebbWhy spend so much time on the un-important things
You can't be satisfied if your heart ain't listening, and
All we need sometimes is a chance to contemplate
That all we have to find is a place where we can relate(What did you say?)Everyday the same routine
I brush, rinse and repeat
Lace my boots and slick back my hair
Put on this costume that I wearA puppet under the hands
Of societal demands
I'll be what you want me to be
See what you want me to see, butWhy spend so much time on the un-important things
You can't be satisfied if your heart ain't listening, and
All we need sometimes is a chance to contemplate
That all we have to find is a place where we can relateInstrumentalWhy spend so much time on the un-important things
You can't be satisfied if your heart ain't listening, and
All we need sometimes is a chance to contemplate
That all we have to find is a place where we can relate
