

Masquerade

Maddi Jane

Walking, I look around, everyone's talking. I don't hear a sound
Trying, to figure out, how to fit in without standing outWaltzing around,
Just another face in the crowd,
I'm tired of the hiding now,
It's weighing me down, weighing me downIn this masquerade,
Pretending we don't make mistakes,
Insecurity is making me feel like I'm different when I know that we're all the same Insecurity is making me feel like I'm different when I know that we're all the sameBreathe in Let it out,
Although I smile, inside I wanna shout,
What's the reason?
We think about what they have to say, tell me why do we doubt?
Waltzing around,
Just another face in the crowd,
I'm tired of the hiding now,
It's weighing me down, weighing me downIn this masquerade,
Pretending we don't make mistakes,
Insecurity is making me feel like I'm different when I know that we're all the same Insecurity is making me feel like I'm different when I know that we're all the sameOutside looking in
On a room full of people and I'm one of them
But when does it end?
It's time to take off the makeup
I'm done with the dance
'Cause I can't keepWaltzing around,
Just another face in the crowd,
I'm tired of the hiding now,
It's weighing me down, weighing me down
In this masquerade,
pretending we don't make mistakes,
Insecurity is making me feel like I'm different when I know that we're all the same Insecurity is making me feel like I'm different when I know that we're all the sameInsecurity is making me feel like I'm different
But I know that I'll be okay
