Old Time Sake

Sweet Sable

Of all the things that you could choose to say
Baby come home with me for old time sake
Stand by my side and flash me that smile
Everybody is out tonight
So I called you up from, God knows where
Would you lie in bed if I were there
And speak soft, just talk I will listen
Don't you dare leave till the morning
Like you always do, like you always do
Follow me down through the streets of the states
Make up a reason not to come for old time sake
Nothing in this town could ever change
Except maybe new lines on your face
So I called you up from, God knows where
Would you lie in bed if I were there
And speak soft, just talk I will listen
Don't you dare leave till the morning
Like you always do, like you always do
Like you always do, like you always do
