Confined

Biopsy

That night I never came home
Wandering souls captured my thoughts
Emptiness filled my mind
Urgency spoke her lies
In the confines of these gray walls
I watched them move together
Taking me places I cannot remember, remember
We have been poured out into this loveless bride
How quickly I forget
That this is meaningless?
How quickly I forget
That this is meaningless?
In a world passing
Through my fingers
I still chase the wind
How quickly I forget
That this is meaningless?
How quickly I forget
That this is meaningless?
What have
I learned from yesterday?
What have
I learned from yesterday?
