

Weakest Moments

John Mellencamp

Well, I hear you downstairs
You're foolin' around with your father's brother
And your mother's gown All the old heroes keep coming around
To find you, if you're still at home So you lie in the sun, watch your body turn to tan
Your skin is oiled with the sweat of a man He bought you a diamond ring, girl, to wear on your hand
And, baby, he's leaving tomorrow Yeah, I'll be with you in your weakest moments, uh huh
Yeah, I'll be with you in your weakest moments You say you remember when it was your world
And you were Mister Ruby's girl
He gave you dreams and schemes that swirl
Around your head and your body And when you drink sometimes, you try to liberate
And you stagger in the front yard till you find the gate
That swing on that thin line of love and hate
And baby, just let it go Yeah, I'll be with you in your weakest moments, uh huh
Yeah, I'll be with you in your weakest moments

Songwriters

MELLENCAMP, JOHN Published by Lyrics © Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>