Last Driftin' Cowboy

Hank Williams, Jr.

1949 sure was a way back when But that's when they formed the band who influenced all of the music since then The twenty-five year old singer was the king of moanin' the blues His words would make you feel
And with that cryin' steel Why they just over powered youVERSE 2I was one of the lucky few that got to play with him when I turned twenty-one he told me son, I'm gonna fill you in don't believe that stuff about your dad bein' sad to the end
He knew how to have fun
He owned the music son
He was a sharp dressed ramblin' manVERSE 3Well now I gotta tell ya somethin'
I want the world to know It's gonna shake your boots and it might chill your soul
'cause I just got the news not too long ago
I've gotta break it to you
(No Guitar)
It's the... end of the showSlower tempo)The last driftin' cowboy is gone Our one link to Hank and those great songs I'm gonna play his steel guitar licks all night long
'cause the last driftin' cowboy has found his way home

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/