You Should Know

Jesse Powell

Don't try to tell me you don't know what I feel
When all I do is try to please you
Do what I can to show my love is for real
Still you just push me awayCome on, girl, give me what you know I deserve
I only want what is right
Don't leave me hanging with my heart on the verge
Of breaking down every night'Cause you should know by now, without any question
That I live and die for the love of you
When the sun don't shine I'll still be by your side
So, baby, you should know that I love youAnd everything you do in my mind
But now I need it for real from you, baby
I know inside you that there's someone that's kind
But I don't know how long I can deal with itCome on and give me what you know I deserve
I only want what is right
Don't leave me hanging with my heart on the verge
Of breaking down every night'Cause you should know by now, without any question
That I live and die for the love of you
And when the sun don't shine I'll still be by your side
So, baby, you should know'Cause no other man will know you like I do, girl
And no other man will treat you like I do
Only a man who really loves you would stand the test
That you've put me through for your heartSo you should know without any question
That I live and die for the love of you
And when the sun don't shine I'll still be by your side
So, baby, you should know'Cause you should know by now, without any question
That I live and die for the love of you
And when the sun don't shine I'll still be by your side
So, baby, you should know that I love youI love you, I love you, I love you, I love you
I love you, I love you, I love you, I love you
I love you, I love you, I love you, I love you
I love you, so, baby, you should know
