

London

Benjamin Clementine

Now as i sit on the back of this grey caravan

Tomorrow i will probably be

Jumping Parisian metro barriers with a bottle in his handSparkling sparkling water mixed with peaches and rhum

Honestly i don't drink but if i did this sure will Be my favourite punch, he saidWalk out the door with her and he could see everyone

Dressed in black a class that seem too far too fetchedShe said, 'look at you look at you the gave is over, the cup is full stop praying for more exposure"It is obvious that you are trying, dubious stop or you will die here, your pretending but no one is buying'London is calling you, what are you waiting for, what you searching for?

London is all in you, why are you denying the truth?

'Well I might be boring you', he said ,although it's not clear as the morning due, when my preferred ways are not happening I won't under estimate whom I am capable of becoming'History will be made to day is written boldly on his face

So clear you could hardly miss it, you could hardly miss it.For transcending the barriers of you yesterday was and is the dream

On a road where Cleopatras comes and goes like fishes caught in ponds then thrown back for funShe said, 'look at you, look at you, just pick a fleet

Your cup is full what have you not yet achieve 'It is obvious that you are trying, dubious stop or you will die here, your pretending but no one is buyingLondon is calling you, what are you waiting for, what you searching for?

London is all in you, why are you in denial of the truth?

I might be boring you, he said, 'although it's not clear as the morning due, when my preferred ways are not happening I won't underestimate who I am capable of becoming'

Songwriters

BENJAMIN ERIC BREAKSPEAREPublished by

Lyrics © Warner/Chappell Music, Inc., WARNER CHAPPELL MUSIC FRANCE, EOS Publishing Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damlyrics.com/>