Writer's Block

Just Jack

I must have got up about twenty to seven

Had a shower and had breakfast

And had a couple of pieces of toast

You know, forced it downThen had a cup of coffee

It was pouring with rain

And I thought oh God

You know, good old EnglandI get this writer's block

It comes as quite a shock

And now I'm stuck between

A hard place and the biggest rockIn my own head consumed

I sit back in my room

It's like the tapestries of life

Get tangled in the loomI'm like a butterfly

Caught in a hurricane

My pulse is quickenin'

As my heart plays a new refrainI'm lovin' Mary Jane

Flyin' with Lois Lane

On board a bullet train

Don't know yet if I'm glad I came

Don't know yet if I'm glad I came(Obviously this helped me I think)

Don't know yet if I'm glad I came

Don't know yet if I'm glad I came

(I always hoped that it would happen)

(But I never thought it really would)Sometimes at night I think too much

About life and love and music and stuff

I mustn't sort of build

My hopes was too highI'm livin' in the past

My clock's an hour fast

Should really go and make a coffee

But I can't be arsedI've lost my mobile phone

You'll have to call my home

On second thoughts, just leave a message

When you hear the toneMy grimy windows show

The early morning glow

Another day, another dollar

In my one man showI'm lovin' Mary Jane

Flyin' with Lois Lane

On board a bullet train

Don't know yet if I'm glad I came

Don't know yet if I'm glad I came(Obviously this helped me I think) Don't know yet if I'm glad I came Don't know yet if I'm glad I came (I always hoped that it would happen) (But I never thought it really would)I fell out with Mary Jane I don't speak to Lois Lane And I missed that bullet train But now I know I'm glad II fell out with Mary Jane I don't speak to Lois Lane And I missed that bullet train But now I know I'm glad II fell out with Mary Jane I don't speak to Lois Lane And I missed that bullet train But now I know I'm glad II fell out with Mary Jane I don't speak to Lois Lane And I missed that bullet train But now I know I'm glad I came But now I know I'm glad I came
