

All Through the Years

Erasure

Longing to sail on
Through the night to the stars
On until sunrise
Where the moon hides her tears
All through the years If I could see the world
Through someone else's eyes
If I could see through you
Would I cast you to one side And if you gave it all
Would I throw it all away
Like the leaves in autumn winds From the window in the kitchen
To the fireside by the chair
Sat in familiar surroundings
Warm night air Under the bridges that were burning
Before we reached the other side
All the feelings I remember, I cannot hide
Not for want of trying And if you held me here
Would the moment fade away
Into obscurity like the night
Becomes the day For all the broken promises
Tell me where do I begin
To throw my caution to the wind From the window in the kitchen
To the fireside by the chair
Sat in familiar surroundings
Warm night air Under the bridges that were burning
Before we reached the other side
All the feelings I remember, I cannot hide
Not for want of trying From the window in the kitchen
To the fireside by the chair
Sat in familiar surroundings
Warm night air Under the bridges that were burning
Before we reached the other side
All the feelings I remember, I cannot hide
Not for want of trying Longing to sail on
Through the night to the stars
On until sunrise
Where the moon hides her tears Longing to sail on
Through the night to the stars
On until sunrise
Where the moon hides her tears Longing to sail on

Through the night to the stars
On until sunrise
Where the moon hides her tears All through the years
All through the years
All through the years
