Storm

Fernando Ortega

Sometimes it takes a storm to really know the light
The scent of rain, the weight of clouds pulling down the sky
Sometimes it takes a storm to know how you feel
To understand indigo and the varnished sun lighting up the fieldsIt takes the rain between the lines to know what sorrow finds
The way a cloud divides sometimes, the clearing and the blue, I love you
I was just passing through and taken by surprise
Between the black sky and the blue
Between the black sky and the blue, I love you, I love you
