

When The Sun Meets The Sky

Eric Johnson

This Sunday
You were blowin' through my mind, yeah
Like Tuesday
You were burnin' in my eyes I hoped today could be just kind of my way
'Cause it so much matters that you're there
And I'd hoped today could lead me into your way
But I fell down in some disrepair The sparks here
They can lead me up the town, yeah
But it's dark here
If I don't have you around So I hoped today would lead me kind of your way
And the sun would be shining on my face
And I'd hoped the road would lead me to your doorway
But I fell down in some disrepair So when the sun meets the sky
I'm gonna take a ride, get to where I do
And when your love is gonna call me home
I will run to you, the way you want me to
Oh, we'll sing Oh, we'll sing Oh, I hoped today would lead me kind of your way
With a love, and treasures we'd find there
And through all the fog, the cracks, the cogs, a gateway
Where I would find somebody to repair me So when the sun meets the sky
Gonna take a ride, get to where I do
When your love is gonna call me home
I will run to you, the way you want me to So when the sun starts to shine
I'm gonna take a ride, get to where I do
When your love is gonna call me home
I return to you, the way you want me to
Oh, we'll sing Yeah, I take a ride
To where I do [Incomprehensible]
