

So Wrong

Jacob Lee

I'm outa breath, maybe I said too much,
I need a sec, you think we could wind this up?
 Ohh, give me time; I'll make this right,
 I will rewind & forget what it's like,
 To lie awake, laying beside you,
 Staring in each other's eyes, two,
 Months before you found a better guy,
 When I thought I knew, found a better lie, every time,
You know I thought I could let it slide, but I can't even recognize you...I never thought I'd be so wrong,
 Lying beside me like you thought I'd never know,
 I never thought I'd be so wrong, so wrong, so wrong...
 I needa love, but I can't find my heart,
 It's left in your palms when you thought I was enough...
 Just tell me did you go & find the love of your life,
 As I gave you everything of mine,
 You've taken away, what keeps me alive,
 Did it ever cross your mind?
 So don't you come back again,
 Knocking on my door with your arrogance,
 You're venomous, I won't let you in, so turn around, & go back to him...
 Ahah, now, now, I never thought I'd be so wrong,
 Lying beside me like you thought I'd never know,
I never thought I'd be so wrong, so wrong, so wrong...This feeling in my chest seems so absurd,
 When I can't wake up next to her,
 Just tell the truth was he the first, ah?
 Oh we're not getting anywhere; oh we're not getting anywhere...
 I never thought I'd be so wrong,
 Lying beside me like you thought I'd never know,
 I never thought I'd be so wrong, so wrong, so wrong...
 I never thought I'd be so wrong,
 Lying beside me like you thought I'd never know, know, know...
 I never thought I'd be so wrong, so wrong...

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.