

If I Could Be Your Star

P.M. Dawn

You're too far away for me to run to
A million galaxies live within you, babe
Why can't I cry my way to your dimension?
Or a new dimension not only out of sight and sound but of mind I'm amazed by night's newest shadows
If I could feel your moon's good intentions, babe
Venus wants her frown and can not kiss me
So I sympathize with the dark side of the moon inside you but If I could be your parallel, if I could be your one way out
If I could be your vision now, if I could be your star
If I could be a brighter light, if I could comfort you at night
If I could be your star, if I could be your star Must I be those rings that surround you?
Can I send a satellite to your garden safely?
Super nova's fight your emotions, so tell me all your reasons
Tell me, why E equals MC squared? You invade my space with gravitation
I don't wanna sacrifice but I'm in orbit, baby
How do all your miles leave you weightless?
Can I touch your surface or will I burn up in your atmosphere? Because If I could be your parallel, if I could be your one way out
If I could be your vision now, if I could be your star
If I could be a brighter light, if I could comfort you at night
If I could be your star, if I could be your star I could feel your sweet radiation
With all the space in you, I haven't seen you lately
A hundred million light years sit between us
So kill the universe and tell me, where your comets take you 'cause If I could be your parallel, if I could be your one way out
If I could be your vision now, if I could be your star
If I could be a brighter light, if I could comfort you at night
If I could be your star, if I could be your star
