She Won't Leave

Bobby Long

your coarse bloody veins, are eating away, they're killing me and now if she stays, I'm running away, from what I need now that I'm older now, she won't grow older with meshe won't leave, and I won't go, since none of us here will ever show, she won't ask, and I won't say, no one here is ever gonna run awaythe time is hurried, the night is heading down to the sea my planted feet are pillars of weight only she can free now that I'm older now she won't grow older with me her prism is open my bounty is bought we hold the keys
