

New Age

Blitz

When I hear the sound of concrete and steel
I sense a rhythm, that science can't feel
I feel the beat of our hearts as one
I hold your color, when my vision is gone
This power is something but the force is blind
Transmitted through a network, of your own kind
As minutes tick away and days become years
I know this old feeling, it's a substance in my tears
And the kids on the street
And the kids everywhere
And all I gotta say is the kids don't care
When I hear
I sense a rhythm
I feel the beat
I hold your color
When you've got me running and you stop my machine
You try to tell me something that has never been
When you stop me running, with my own pack
You know you've got me swearing that I'll get my own back
