Trains

The Vapors

And again I wait for you
My tired hands are turning blue

I'm not sure if it's night or day
My body's aching in the cold and rain
But, I can't go home in case you're on the next train

So, here I stand, I'm just waiting for you

Everybody I know has to face the trains
Everybody I know makes the same mistakes

Playing games I turn around
I kick my heals I count the clowns
I watch another lonely man
Oh, but there's something in the air

That says I'm in the right place
So, I gaze at the crowd I'm trying to find the right face
And there it is, you say you're sorry too

Everybody I know has to face the trains
Everybody I know makes the same mistakes

Well, there's a hole in the ground that seems to eat me up
I can't say enough about the two of us

My arms are breaking I can't hold you enough

Oh, I can't hold you enough
Oh, I can't hold you enough

[Repeat: x7]
I want to love you again

I wan'a, I wan'a, I wan'a

Everybody I know has to face the trains

Everybody I know makes the same mistakes

Well, I took you to a glycerin party every night
I followed on my lead when you put out the light
I couldn't fight the feeling that it's warmer than rain
I couldn't fight the feeling that you can't fight trains cause I know

Nobody tastes like you
Nobody looks like you
Nobody loves like you
Nobody tastes like you
Nobody looks like you

I can't go home

[Repeat: x7]
I wan'a do it again

I wan'a, I wan'a, I wan'a

(What did you say)
I said a lot of things that I didn't mean
(Tell me why)
Cause I was hungry for your sweet sixteen
(So you lied)
I get so lost and lame
Oh, just to keep you here you're so naive
Like on a ball and chain but, I wan'a do it again

[Repeat: x7]
I wan'a do it again

I wan'a, I wan'a, I wan'a

Everybody I know has to face the trains
Everybody I know makes the same mistakes

Don't let the trains get'ya

Lyrics powered by lyrics.tancode.com written by Fenton, David
Lyrics Â© EMI Music Publishing, JALMA MUSIC

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/