

Easy Way Out (With Brittany Howard)

Dylan LeBlanc

indecision, poor decision led me to believe that you live and you learn till you earn your own worst enemy cross my heart and hope to die unless you got something better if misery loves company why aren't we in this together all has been said and all has been done take a number you ain't the only one the easy way out
it's a dangerous path
and no one knows it like i do
beat the door down
and shatter the glass but you better be sure what it leads to what it leads to the lash i felt from the bible belt got me down on my knees when i thought that i could stand on my own two feet thorazine dreams are thundering in dangerous weather where in my head i'll soon be dead or soon feeling better all has been said
and all has been done
take a number babe you ain't the only one the easy way out
it's a dangerous path
and no one knows it like i do
beat the door down
and shatter the glass but you better be sure what it leads to what it leads to

Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>