

Private Hell

Alice In Chains

Give away a love
And then remove another too
Painted words adorn the walls
Echoing untrue
I feel cold Promises abound
You rarely find it to begin
Maybe I'm afraid
To let you all the way in
I guess so I excuse myself
I'm used to my little cell
I amuse myself
In my very own private hell I excuse myself
I'm used to my little cell
I amuse myself
In my very own private hell Lately I'm beside myself
Pretending, unconcerned
Standing at a corner
Where I threw you on a turn
I'll move on Flowers on a cross remain
Mark an ending scene
Damn it all if blood you spill
Turn the grass more green
Life is short I excuse myself
I'm used to my little cell
I amuse myself
In my very own private hell I excuse myself
I'm used to my little cell
I amuse myself
In my very own private hell I amuse myself
In my very own private hell
