

Snowball (War Child)

Elbow

Tied this letter to the red balloon
Flew this letter off across the ruse
Along with all the plans I made
OohOver crippled cranes and twisted steel
Deadlines overgrown and missing wheels
I told you so communicate
OohTold you so
Told you soThe biggest of mistakes can be forgiven
But a snowball of little white lies will crush your houseFrom the razor wire in old Iraq
Oil is what you make the nation's flag
Pray you never sleep again
OohOh and laughable the crying shame
Oh the mark I made against your name
I hope this finds you less than sane
OohTold you so
Told you soFor you to think that history's rewritten
You'd have to think the dead will be forgotten
Your snowball of little white lies has crushed our houseWhen the pills you take
No longer help you
You're fading in your chair
And would've met him
We see the lightning
You hear the birdsong
You hear the voices you've been holding off for so long
Words around you
And then a hurricane
A hundred thousand souls
And everyone in pain
We'll come and visit you
We'll come and visit you(Never sleep again)When the pills you take
No longer help you
Fading in your garden chair
With a wooden tool
You see the lightning
You'll hear the birdsong
You hear the voices you've been holding off for so long
Words around you
And then a hurricane
A hundred thousand punctured souls

And everyone in pain
We'll come and visit you
We'll come and visit you(Never sleep again)

Songwriters

MOTHERSBAUGH, MARK ALLEN/CASALE, GERALD /Published by Lyrics Â© Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC, Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. Song Discussions is protected by U.S.
Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>