Twice

Leo Kottke

when the stars up in the sky when the lights along the street when the TVs in the mo-tel shinewhen the fingertips are fro-zen when the empty wind starts closing if they've got one they're all going, homewe're just sitting here, all by myself you and me, nobody else but me sometimes shadows are the only light we seeevery night somebody's cryin' down the alley, on the cold, cold, ground someone's running, but they'll never, never, thinkthere's a shadow underneath the trees someone running, someone no one needs sometimes darkness is the only light we seethere's a shadow underneath the tree
sometimes darkness is the only light we see
