Johnna Knows

Zanilonia

JOHNNA KNOWS

Johnna's room puts my mind in a trance
Silks from india and coffee from france
The scent of cloves and incense is filling the air
Ink drawings and green palms everywhere
Johnna's eyes make me dizzy and weak
Living dangerously in valleys and peaks
Wondering where i stand as the evening slides past
Sweet closeness in small doses goes fast

Johnna knows but she's not gonna tell
It's still a secret she keeps very well
Johnna knows her heart is closed in a shell
Â
Johnna changes her mind every day
Should she take some classes or move to L.A.
What should she do with the two men who've captured her mind
Both please her, she won't leave one behind
Johnna's future is a white empty wall
She wants to paint it and cover it all
But she likes too many colors and she can't decide
Which love does she dream of deep inside

Johnna knows but she's not gonna tell
Why should she choose when it's going so well
Johnna knows her heart is closed in a shell

Getting through one night at a time
Pain and pleasure that fill up my mind
Hidden meaning in every word that she says
How long can it go on on the edge

Johnna knows but she's not gonna tell
Why should she choose when it's going so well
Johnna knows and if it shows what the hell

Lyrics Submitted by Zanilonia

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/