Buffalo Gals

Eric Weissberg

We're making habits out of vanities and gospel for the stalls
But the less you breathe the more you see of it allThe lions share is courting the teen
One hand holds them back while the other is holding me
We don't connect though we're both disconnectedOh, oh yeah, we're so in love or else we're waving
The unloaded guns in the air but it's the same thing, ain't it?I'm only here to give you someone to leave when you get bored
But the first mistake so good it'll only ensure anotherOh, oh yeah, you look so good or you're just saving
Your flaws for the tight lipped lover but it's the same thing, ain't it?We're lost, profound
And we are bound by the secrets we keep from each other
We're lost, profound
And we are bound by the secrets we keep from each otherPick up your heels dig down in
It don't matter when the void is ravenous
It's too late for us now anyway
It's too late for us now, it's too late for us now
This confession is a lost cause we got dead before we arriveWe're making habits out of vanities and gospel for the stalls
So grab your old lady and dance into the breach Yeah, let's dance one more time into the breachOh, oh yeah, we're so in love or else we're waving
Unloaded guns into the air but it's the same thing, ain't it?Divine light sparks from a severed wire
So we hit the town like our parachutes failed
Divine light sparks from a severed wire
So we hit the town like our parachutes failedWe're lost, profound
And we are bound by the same dichotomy

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/