

Marked for Death

Emma Ruth Rundle

it was right that we did meet each other in each other's eyes it was right that we did see each other in our shadow sides it was wrong then too that crazy love, loves crazy as it does and each of us and both of us so crazy; as it was who else is going to love someone like you that's marked for death

who else is going to be with you when you breathe your last who else is going to take my place and hold and keep you safe/sane who else is going to stay you were right on time to break your head and make the death bed you were right on time to crash those galaxies and flat-line you were right on time to make the light inside of me a life you were right on time to meet me, crazy love, and watch us die who else is going to love someone like you that's marked for death who else is going to be with you when you breathe your last

who else would ever stay who else would ever stay who else would

who else would

who else would

who else would

who else would

who else would

who else is going to love someone like me

that's marked for death?

who else is going to be with me when i breathe at all?

who else would ever take your place and hold and keep me safe?
